The Memorial Hospital handbook: Tips for a smooth hospital arrival

Planning to come to Memorial Hospital of South Bend's main entrance as a patient or visitor? We're sharing a comprehensive guide that takes you from your doorstep to our lobby so you'll know how to plan ahead and what to expect the next time you visit the hospital campus.

"Hospitals are pretty big places, and Memorial Hospital is no exception," said Kara Strang, Director of Operations for visitor management and volunteer services. "We want our patients' and visitors' experience to be exceptional when you arrive and come through our doors. Our security, police and visitor management team members are here to help."

Pardon our progress — Our new Patient Tower is taking shape

Work will be ramping up on the hospital's new 10-story Patient Tower this summer. Ensuring everyone's safety is a priority for our facilities, security, police and construction teams as the project continues through 2026.

"We welcome about 2,600 individuals at our main entrance every day," Jason Stefaniak, Chief of Police and Director of Security, said. "The changes we've made at our main entrance driveway and inside our lobby are intended to maximize safety. We encourage patients to plan ahead and leave a little early for appointments at the hospital."
